Garage and 2 Cars Destroyed In Fire Caused by Small Boys

Two small boys, aged 5 and 7, this week started a fire which burned a garage to the ground and completely destroyed two automobiles housed in the structure.

The youngsers were playing with matches in the rear of the garage at 18-20 Boylston street, Newton, which was owned jointly by Robert Morey and Henry C. Marcus, next door neighbors, police reported.

According to police, the children set fire to debris behind the garage, and the flames swiftly spread through both the garage and the two automobiles it contained at

Contrast Between Conventions Of Rival Parties Was Striking

Now that the two major parties have concluded their pre-primary conventions, political observers are en-deavoring to assess what the conclaves accomplished, what good or harm they did and what scars, if any, they

Here are some of the reactions of this writer after pitting through both the Democratic and Republican as-

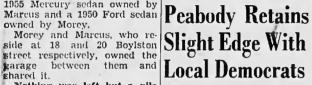

The Republican convention was more orderly, better disciplined, more carefully and skilfully planned. The Democratic conclave, while unruly and disorderly at times during its first session, reflected greater political vitality and produced more enthusiasm and excitement.

After Attorney General George Fingold won the Republican gubernatorial nomination over Governor's Councillor Christian A. Herter, Jr., the GOP delegates pretty much sat back to wait for word as to whom Fingold desired as his running mates.

The Democratic convention was completely unbossed. Governor Furcolo and Senator Kennedy got out of the convention hall just as quickly as they could to avoid any impression that they might be taking sides in the bitter fight for the endorsement for Attorney General.

It was clear that Furcolo and Kennedy did maintain a hands-off policy of strict neutrality. Delegates regarded as close to Kennedy were divided among all three contenders for the right to run as the Democratic contender for in Waltham District Court's -POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS-(Continued on Page 4)

Explosion Rocks Adams St. Area

A blast of undetermined origin rocked the area of Adams street in Newton Sunday and damaged about 100 feet of roadway. Adams street was roped off to traffic between Clinton street and Lincoln road until the cause of the explosion could be discovered.

Crews from the Boston Gas Company, Boston Edison pany, and Street, Fire and Sew er Departments were seeking the cause of the explosion which startled many residents of the area.

The blast lifted portions of the concrete several inches and made a number of small holes in the surface, but no one was reported injured.

Newtonville Man Killed As Truck Hits His Stalled Car

Isadore H. Margolin, 49, of 125 Beaumont avenue, Newtonville, was killed as flames roared through his automobile after a crash in the town of Russell, Margolin's machine had become disabled and was parked on the Woronoco bridge, awaiting the arrival of tow truck when, police said, a truck operated by Newton H. Flavil, 41, of Vivian, La., crashed into it.

The Newtonville man was trapped in the wreckage as flames, feeding on gasoline, swept the car. His body was taken to a Westfield funeral home.

Trustees Honor Departed Clerk

A resolution honoring the memory of Charles Raymond Cabot, former trustee and clerk of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital who died April 1, was offered by William Chase at the regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Trustees held

Unanimously adopted by the vote of the Board was the following tribute:

"It is with a feeling of deep-est regret and sorrow that we record the passing on April 1, 1958 of Charles Raymond Cabot, a Trustee of the New-ton-Wellesley Hospital since 1939 and its Clerk since 1941.

"Of sterling character, gra-clous in personality, and wise in his counsel, by his death the Hospital has suffered a serious loss. Fortunately, however, he left such an indelible impression that the Hospital will forever by a stronger and better force for usefulness in the community.
"We have known him best for the warmth and steadfast-ness of his friendship, for the dignity and integrity which characterized his every undertaking, and for the wise coun-sel which he so often gave. For all these we admired him, as well as for the fortitude and courage which he showed in his last, long, ingering illness.

White Cots in '28 and '58

The Night Before the 4th was different in the old

Daddy brought home a huge brown paper bag. It was filled with fireworks — skyrockets; 3-inch salutes; sparklers; bunches of little red firecrackers with Chinese markings on the tissue wrapping; torpedoes packed in

The 4th was different, too. It was noisy. Hardly a minute passed through the early morn, the long day and ged contests in the primary. far into the night that didn't bring the sharp Bang of a giant salute. Or several that exploded at once.

And it was also different on July 5. Newspapers were filled with the casualty lists. This little boy lost a hand when a giant salute violently ruptured the old tomato can he held over it. That little girl would never see again. Someone accidentally brushed a lighted sparkler against

The editorials of July 5 were likewise different. They said that something should be done about abolishing fireworks. They demanded to know if we were a civilized nation. Up in their ivory towers the editorial writers became real upset and indignant about the white cots in

Somebody must have read editorials in those days. Anyway they passed laws banning fireworks—at least the home-use kind; the kind that was filling up the hospital

Sure July 4 is different today. So is the Night Before. So is July 5.

For one thing there are more hospitals and therefore more cots. They're filled, too. And the morgues get a better play than they did on the old days. For while the fireworks' victims of the old days lost sight and limbs and fingers and toes-they generally lived, although blinded and maimed.

The sudden holiday-time patients of the hospitals today die by the hundreds. And many of them never get to white cots. They are brought directly to the morgue from the scene.

The editorials are different. That is they don't speak about fireworks. They tell about speed; and alcohol mixed with gasoline, and about courtesy on the highway.

The men in the ivory towers wax just as indignant as they did in the old days. They deplore things just as much. Must be, too, that some people read what they write. People are forever thinking up new motor vehicle laws, or tacking up "Slow Down" signs, or conducting drives on reckless operation of motor vehicles.

The editorial writers today also manage to work in demands about whether or not we are a civilized nation. Nothing seems to do much good.

There's an organization with headquarters in Chicago which can predict within a few hundred lives how many nice little children and nice grownups will be having funerals a comparatively few hours hence.

They did a nice job legislating home-use fireworks out of existence. All they had to do was pass a few laws. They pass lots of laws about speeding on the highways. They don't seem to take.

Lots of people think automobile accidents are some think which happen to somebody else.

That's why many motorists are going to speed their way right into these nice white cots and the morgues this weekend. Lots more are going to mix powerful cocktails out of gasoline and alcohol.

Some of them are going to beat that other guy to the hill even if it kills them.

It's a good thing that the hospitals have more cots on Independence Day, 1958, than they did back in the early 20s. It's a good thing, too, that the morgues have more modern facilities for handling their cases. Unfortunately, they'll need them.

6200 Human Lives

Approximately 6200 person will die by drowning this year.

The overwhelming percentage of this sacrifice of human life might be averted if the victims or those about them chose to exercise only a modicum of common sense

However, at beaches along the coast there'll be the usual number who'll insist on going in for swim when they know the "undertow is bad today." The next day's newspapers will record that he (or she) was a strong swimmer but the pull of the undertow was too great and that one or more other persons who tried to be rescuers nearly lost their own lives.

There'll be the youngsters, too, who'll rebel against the confinement of man-made clothes when a sun high in the summer skies scorches the earth and makes the very air they breath a punishment. These youngsters will know a cool and limped swimming spot unsupervised by strict lifeguards. The newspapers will report that grappling operations for recovery of the body will be continued with the sunrise next morning. There'll be children and adults, too, who'll drown in closely supervised swimming places because they forgetfully disobeyed the rules.

Swimming is one of the oldest and most healthful of sports. It's clean. It's invigorating. It's worth the many millions we spend to make beaches; to buy bathing suits; to hire life guards and Red Cross swim teachers.

Actually, the 6000-odd drownings is a small percentige of the hundreds of thousands of persons who'll enjoy fresh and salt water swimming this year. It's an infinitesmal percentage. Yet, even that tiny number could be almost obliterated if people stopped to think; if parents made certain that their children didn't court unnecessary dangers.

Political Highlights

Attorney General. Others who would have been responsive to a quiet word from Furcolo were similarly split.

In view of the turmoil and the furore created at the Democratic proceedings by the contest for the en-dorsement for Attorney General, one can only conjecture as to what would have happened if the Democrats were picking an entire State ticket, as the Republicans did at Worcester.

The GOP delegates at their conclave pretty well fashioned a complete slate for next November's election, notwithstanding the announcement by former Speaker Charles Gibbons that he would challenge Attorney General George Fingold for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in the September primary.

There were only two real battles at the Democratic convention which took more than three times as long as the Republican assembly. Those, of course, were for Attorney General and Treasurer.

Neither convention, in the judgment of this onlooker, left any lasting scars, at least not any as deep and bruising as would be caused by a hard-fought primary cam-

The turning point at the Republican convention, as far as the production of party harmony was con-cerned, came when Attorney General Fingold persuaded Executive Councillor Herter to take the GOP nomination for Attorney General.

That almost automatically wiped out the bitterness and disappointment of the Herter followers and swung them into line behind Fingold. While Gibbons declared his intention of carrying his fight into the primary, the belief persisted then and still persists that he would eventually be dissuaded from doing so.

At least two of the candidates endorsed at the Democratic convention—Boston City Councillor Edward J. Mc-Cormack, Jr., for Attorney General, and William G. Shaughnessy of Woburn for State Treasurer—face rugged contests in the primary.

Looking back over the Democratic convention in retrospect, it seems rather clear that former Governor's Councillor Endicott (Chub) Peabody and ex-Representative Joseph D. Ward made a tactical error when they allowed their supporters to stage a wild demonstration in Mechanics Building early on a Sunday morning and prevent the taking of a fourth ballot in the contest for the Attorney General endorsement.

McCormack probably would have won if a fourth votes away from a third ballot victory. But his margin then would not have been as great as it was last Saturday Some Peabody and Ward delegates, who sat through the entire convention, were dismayed and disgusted by the demonstration which the two candidates made no real effort to hait. A portion of them either didn't, return for last Saturday's conclave or shifted to McCormack.

to the vote-pulling strength the former All-American Harvard football player will have in a fight of this kind.

Two years ago, McCormack lost at the convention but then defeated Ward in the primary. With a State-wide campaign behind him and with the convention endorsement, McCormack should be stronger in the coming primary than he was in 1956. Peabody must be regarded for the present, at least, as an unknown quantity.

Woburn Mayor Shaughnessy, who captured the convention nomination for State Treasurer, now faces the still more difficult task of meeting Treasurer John F. Kennedy in the primary. The Democratic voters, of course, do not attach the same importance or significance to convention endorsements as do their Republican cousins. There also is a possibility that Boston School Committee Chairman George F. Hurley will move into the primary fight for Treasurer.

It is quite likely, incidentally, that other candidates endorsed at the two Democratic convention sessions may have competition in the primary. In fact, the probability is that more will be running opposed than unopposed.

So from the standpoint of avoiding the expense and the strife of a primary campaign, which theoretically is one of the purposes of a pre-primary convention, the Republican conclave accomplished more than did the Democratic assembly.

However, some political observers are convinced that a primary contest may help rather than hurt a candidate under some circumstances. They feel that an office-seeker can benefit both from the publicity he gets for some time.

in winning a primary fight and from the momentum that is given his own campaign.

Governor Furcolo, for example, was helped by the fact that he had primary opposition in 1956. Furcolo was out campaigning and commanding attention while Sumner G. Whittier was marking time, waiting for the primary to be concluded. Furcolo's drive got up steam which Monday through Thursday for could not have been possible if he had been idle in the a six-week period.

That is especially true in the Democratic party where the politicos forget their feuds and close their rifts much more quickly than do the Republicans.

One reason for all the fury and fire generated at the Democratic convention is that the candidates and their supporters believe that a strong political tide is running in favor of their party. A good many office-seekers would like to ride to victory on the crest of that tide.

Last Saturday's Democratic convention was planned and run much more smoothly than the stormy, turbulent McCormack probably would have won if a fourth session of the previous week. A real effort was made to same strength, losing only one ballot had been recorded at that time. He was only nine keep out the non-delegates who had caused much of the Newton vote in the intervening trouble at the first conclave.

Anyone could walk in off the street and become embroiled in a row with delegates during the proceedings in Mechanics Building. That was not true last Saturday at the Hotel Bradford where many persons were denied admittance.

Both Democratic and Republican convention managers had so much trouble keeping the delegates on hand McCormack will now meet Peabody in the September primary, and the political experts are speculating as accepts appointment as a delegate if he or she doesn't intend to sit through the entire proceedings.

At the GOP conclave in Worcester some of the delegates began to head for home during the noonday recess period as soon as the contest for Governor was decided. At that point the conclave had been in session less than three hours.

The Democratic delegates began to slip away after 8 or 10 hours during the first session at Mechanics Building. The Republican conclave lasted only seven hours. and when it ended the hall was only sparsely filled. Practically no one left the Democratic convention for the

The Republican conclave, operating from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., recessed for a noonday lunch period. The Democratic assembly, operating from 10 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. the next morning in its first installment, recessed only for the purpose of settling arguments and quelling disturbances.

Those in charge of the Democratic convention were fearful that if they recessed at any time for lunch, dinner, supper or a midnight snack, that many of the delener, supper or a midnight snack, that many of the dele-mary, and Shaugnessy will gates wouldn't return. So the Democrats were left to have to meet State Treasurer appease their hunger as best they could.

Of the two conventions, the Democratic conclave was much the more exciting, lusty and vigorous.

But the pre-primary convention is here to stay as far as the Republicans are concerned, while the Demofar as the Republicans are concerned, while the Democrats aren't certain whether they'll have any more conclaves. The one they just concluded was enough to last for some time.

The newsby is probably the smallest unit in our capitalistic way of life." — Judge Franklin E. Regan in sentencing a man convicted of stealing those of the South Congregational Church, officiating.

Congressional Bid

A large number of Newton residents were among more than 500 persons who attended a reception tendered to Boston City Councillor Edward F. Mc-Laughlin Jr., of Jamaica Plain at the Parker House roof last Thursday night.

Wilfred L. O'Leary, headmas-Minnie Goldstein, 120 Summer Street, Newton Centre, the operator, and Rose Magerer, 20 annually by the University of Commonwealth park, Chestnut Denver's Research Institute, for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 10th conter of the Roslindale High School, presided at the affair at which McLaughlin's campaign for Congress in the 10th con-gressional district was moved into high gear.

Prominent Democrats from various sections of Newton pledged their support to Mc-Laughlin at the reception which was the biggest and most col-orful gathering of its kind yet held during the present political campaign.

McLaughlin, son of the late Fire Commissioner Edward F. Police said that Mr. Hankin told them that he was driving east on Brookline street, Oak

B & A Brands 16-Cent Fare Hike Inadequate; Threatens to Cancel All Suburban Commuter Service

Newton railroad commuters, already severely jolted by the loss of the Highland Branch line, found little comfort in the swift and stern reaction of B&A officials to a decision granting the road a 16-cent fare hike for its suburban operations.

Even before the patrons had a chance to figure the impact of the hike on their budgets, the railroad's spokesman was bewailing the DPU grant as inadequate.

Vice President Ernest C, Nickerson, in charge of passenger sales and service for the New York Central which leases the lines to the B&A, announced the road was going to take "an immediate hard look at whether Central can continue to provide any suburban service on the Boston & Albany."

Treasurer Kennedy Prepares For Fight With Party Leaders

State Treasurer John F. Kennedy, who shunned and boycotted the Democratic pre-primary convention, is getting ready for another showdown fight with leaders in his own party.

It is no secret that top Democratic figures in Massa-chusetts would like to purge Kennedy, but the quiet-man-nered treasurer does not succumb easily to political

How far the Bay State's Democratic chieftains will go in their efforts to keep Treasurer Kennedy off their ticket is uncertain. It doesn't seem likely that they can go much farther than they did in 1956, when they were unable to keep him down.

The Democratic leaders know that if Kennedy wins election to a third term in November he undoubtedly will be gunning for the Governorship two years from now. Under the State Constitution he could not run for Treasurer again in 1960.

They would like to wash him out of their political hair this year if they could possibly do it.

But even Kennedy's most outspoken and bitter critics in the Democratic party privately concede that the likelihood of defeating him in the September primary is not exactly a bright one, although they are not able to explain his reduct vote pulling ability.

plain his robust vote-pulling ability.

It's no longer possible to brush Kennedy off with the theory that many people vote for him because they think he is Senator John F. Kennedy. Most voters across the Commonwealth have been pretty well educat-

Technically, Newton will have no school supehintendent after Aug. 1 when Dr. Gores is to begin a month's vacation preliminary to assuming his new duties in his $30,000-a-year position with the Ford Foundation on Sept. 1.

In one of his farewell speeches as school superintendent, Dr. Gores urged in an address before the Rotary Club that Newton maintain its high standard of education even as the city itself expands and grows.

He also offered the observation that one of the reasons for the high quality of Newton's public school system is that it has been free from political pressure of any kind. Dr. Gores told his listeners that as a teacher and as superintendent it has been "exciting to be a part of a school develor ment program that has kept pace with the rapid growth of

"The challenge has been and will continue to be met so that at no time shall Newton find itself faced with a school crisis such as has been found in many cities and towns," he said. "Newton has been fortunate in not having had to hold "double seasions" hand should not be faced with this problem if the citizens continue to support the development of Additional educational facilities," Dr. Gores continued. "With the building of the new high school in Onk Hill, that will house 1500 pupils in three 500 pupil units, the city will have a facility that all citizens can be proud of," Gore stated. "It is important that Newton continue to support the Newton Junior College in Newtonville an financially and educationally as it makes sense to do so.

"With proper citizen sup-port," Dr. Gores told the Rotary Club members, "Newton's taxpayers will retain the financing of the educational program as well as the control of operating costs of this college. It is althe school system be main-tained by the local taxpayer so that a firm policy may be adopted when it comes to mak-

"The greatness of the school system has been a result of the ability of the school department to operate without pressures of this type.
"When personnel may be hired strictley on the basis of qualification, then Newton can't help but retain its national reputation. This reputation has brought many new families to Newton as these families real-ize that a good school system means a good community.

"Newton is a great city, a clean community and ranks near the top of America's finest authorizan areas. With continued public support of its education at candards, it shall remain in that position for many, many ceres, Dr. Gores concluded.

Mr. Mella, who is well known as president and general manager of Gerard Caterers, Inc., received an impressive vote in his initial bid for the Senate two years ago, rolling up the larg-est total ever polled by a Demo-cratic candidate in that senatorial district.

A prominent businessman. Melia is a former president of the Brighton Board of Trade and presently is chairman of its board of directors.

In announcing his candidacy, he asserted that his various civic and business activities have enabled him to acquire an extensive knowledge of the district and its needs.

Convinced of his ability to winn the Senate seat, Mr. Melia began campaigning immediately after the last election and hasn't stopped working since

Thirdly, the two big fireworks displays which drew a total of some 35,000 spectators went off smoothly.

The lone "black mark" of the day came with the sounding of false alarms. Only three were recorded as compared with many times that number in past years. Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr., assigned men and apparatus to the fireworks disparatus to the fireworks dis-plays at Newton Centre and the Newton Upper Falls play-grounds as precautionary meas-ures but they were not needed. Litter and Pride

One of the top local real estate men gave us a lift when the family buggy came up with a bad case of sum-mer obstinacy, possibly traceable to an ulcerated spark-

We only went a couple of blocks. Then he applied his brakes, tossed a "Scuse me a minute" over his shoulder and went across the street. He picked up a sheet of newspaper waiting for a non-existent breeze to blow it on some-one's lawn. He rolled it into a small ball, returned to the car and tossed the little paper ball in the back of the

He's a busy man. You have to be to make a living these days. It was an admirable display of civic-mindedness, and it left me a little astounded for a minute.

"You're wondering why I did that," he said after we were on our way again. "Yeah," we told him, "you're probably trying to sell somebody around here a house." "You're half right," he admitted. "I am driving a potential customer out this way in a coupla days."

Then he launched into a little harangue on how little things can affect a real estate sale. He cited a few examples. Gist of his little talk was that it was easier to sell a not-so-good house in a well-kept neighborhood, than it was to sell a fine house in an area where people weren't so fussy about outward appearances.

The little display of fussiness about that innocent, yellowed page of newsprint led to all that,

Have you noticed that spokesmen of the agencies res ponsible for the maintenance of the State highways have begun to make their seasonal announcements about a drive on litterbugs? Have you noticed also that among the installations making their appearance on the highways at this time of the year are trash receptacles and signs directed to the attention of the so-called litterbugs?

Our community on the whole-we think-is one of the best hereabouts on the standpoint of neatness. It's something more than a sense of civic pride. It's something that goes with the people themselves.

It takes time and effort to keep a home and the property around it. Whether it's a $30,000 home or a $5000 cottage, the maintenance of its surroundings, fairly or unfairly, serve to reflect the character of the occupants. You can't go wrong when you pick up that piece of paper and eliminate that littered appearance whenever

It can pay off in many ways—but it pays off mostly in personal pride.

Political Highlights

Clement A. Riley, present Registrar of Motor Vehicles, also was an extremely strong and popular contender who had enthusiastic and energetic support from influential Democrats in all parts of the State. Riley was twice endorsed for Tressurer by the Democratic convention and twice lost to Kennedy.

Perhaps Shaughnessy will be able to succeed where Riley failed, but most political experts suspect that the Woburn Mayor will find the going against Kennedy lust as rough and rugged as the present Registrar did before him.

many Democratic politicos had virtual despaired of beating Kennedy, he might have had a real chance of capturing the endorsement of the Democratic convention if he had submitted himself to it as a candi-

Tressurer Kennedy, however, was unwilling to take the chance of being embarrassed and humiliated as he was able to attract a mere handful of delegate votes. So he ignored the convention and stayed completely away from it.

Now he's plodding along, making his customary lone wolf campaign, expecting nothing but opposition from the leaders in his own party. His is a situation unprecedented In the modern history of Massachusetts politics.

Furcolo Given Better Chance Of Obtaining Withholding Tax

Present indications on Beacon Hill are that Governor Furcolo may still win his fight for the enactment of a State income tax withholding law, notwithstanding the margin by waich the measure was killed by the State Senate earlier in the year.

Even opponents of the proposal privately concede that the bill is more likely to survive its journey through the Benate this time. It already has been approved by the House of Representatives and is now pending be-by Mr. Furcolo during his service as Governor. It would virtually solve his problem of where to get the money

MORE MORE TO KUM

It may be difficult for some people to understand how a bill, which was rejected as decisively as was the withholding tax measure by the State Senate, could possibly be approved by the same body during the same

The average onlooker also may be somewhat mys-issed as to how a Senator can justify voting against a in a May and for it in July and how he will explain shift to his constituents when he is campaigning unlection next autumn. There are a number of different reasons why the withholding measure appears to be headed toward adoption in the Senate.

In the first place, the vote by which the bill was rejected in the Senate during the spring was misleading. Several senators waited until the end of the rollcall before casting their votes. One or two, at least, would have to represent their votes would have passed it.

That will not make it any easier for them to explain the democratic way. their about-face on the bill, but it does reflect their think-

An important factor in the situation is that Governor Furcolo's position in the Legislature is regarded as subtantially stronger today than it was two or three months ago.

When Furcolo broke through the Republican opposition in the Senate to obtain the passage of the bill authorizing the appointment of six additional judges to the Massachusetts Superior Court, it had a tremendous psychological impact upon legislators in both parties.

The fact that Furcolo had the solid support of the delegates to the Democratic preprimary convention also did not escape the attention of the lawmakers.

A surprisingly large number of Republican Senators have disclosed that they do not intend to stand for re-election. Those who aren't running for any office this year will not have to do any explaining to the public concerning their votes.

The Republican strength in the Senate also has been cut from 21 to 20 as a result of the illness of Senator Philip G. Bowker who probably will be unable to return to the State House for the remainder of the present session. That knocks out one vote that was against the withholding bill the first time around.

What some Senators may hang their hats on, in explaining why they voted against the withholding tax the first time and for it the second, is that the present bill is slightly different from the measure the Governor originally submitted. This proposal provides that business and industrial concerns will be reimbursed for the expense which the processing of the withholding tax returns imposes on

That was a very important consideration, especially from the standpoint of the small businessman who would have been hard hit by the cost the State withholding system would force upon him. Governor Furcolo has used figures, which were compiled by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, in working out a graduated scale of reimbursement for business and industrial firms. That was done in a large measure at the instigation of Democratic Senate Leader John E. Powers who sat hended, discard the reprimands, down with representatives of business and industry and paintakingly ascertained just what expense a withholding law would cause for them.

As a result businessmen who violently opposed the withholding tax bill a year ago and who objected to the first measure the Governor sent to the Legislature this year, now concede-or at least a big majority of them do-that the present measure treats them fairly and equitably.

Unless there is a change in sentiment in the Senate, it is possible that the withholding bill will be enacted by a margin of one or two votes and, that starting next January, Massachusetts wage-earners will have small deductions from their pay envelopes each week to cover their State income taxes

That, at least, is the way the picture shapes up at this time. It is, of course, subject to change.

Fingold's Prospects Improved By the Withdrawal of Gibbons

Attorney General George Fingold unquestionably has are many men and women in improved his prospects of attaining the Governorship by persuading former Speaker Charles Gibbons to change in a suffering a lone existence, living fore the Senate ways and means committee.

Passage of the withholding bill would represent the most important and significant legislative victory achieved most important and significant legislative victory achieved which they are entitled. They

The Republicans in Massachusetts don't have the same capacity as the Democrats for licking their wounds,

Even if Fingold vanquished Gibbons in a September battle for the GOP nomination for the Governor-ship, the Attorney General probably would have been lujured by the battle he would have been forced to wage and by the scars which would have been left on the Republican party.

A Democratic candidate actually can be helped by vigorous primary fight. A Republican rarely is, particularly if the campaign arouses any substantial amount of

Attorney General Fingold and his lieutenants must have heaved a deep sigh of relief when Gibbons finally yielded to pressure and consented to abandon his guber-

Hits Higher Taxes

Editor, Newton Graphic: The greeting card or slip measuring 414 x 814 enclosed stockholders in a Big Business and showing the over-burdened taxpayers where our tax dollar will travel in 1958 has been carefully scrutinized. I am wondering if the word "Stockhold-er" sould have read "Stuckholder" when we have been socked two ways - higher assess ments and taxes. The situation reminds be of what many fight managers have to say after a verdice is rendered against their contestant, viz: "We Wuz Rob-

It is very evident that the large and small taxpayers, sup-ported by the Newton Taxpayers Association have a job to do, not as penny-pinchers, but dollar savers as we no longer can ignore the fact that Taxes are so close to confiscation that they constitute a serious threat to all . . . The time is approaching when "financial watchdogs, with out a leash" will be neces sary to save our dollars from traveling so fast out of fixed incomes, retirement situations into higher assessments and higher taxes, if not, the ability to pay will have to enter into the picture.... Perhaps the prayer of our elected and appointed officials

"We expect to pass thru this world but once. When-ever we can increase assessments and taxes to make your depreclated dollar travel faster, it will be done, for we may not pass this way again. Finally, the customary slogan, Clean Up, Paint Up and Fix Up will be watched. If you do, it will mean "Good Pickings" for higher assess-

Some of our cities elect their Assessors by ballot. It might he advisable to sponsor a bill

Our legislators on Beacon Hill, in both parties, have thrown out a 25% fringe tax on cities bordering on the 14 cities served by the M.T.A. There is plenty of evidence that the residents in the fringe cities depend on the M.T.A. Can any one tell the voters when our legislators have thrown out a salary increase and a traveling ex-pense increase? Most of them have income from two or three sources. Now you can pin-point this fact — the ability to pay higher assessments and taxes, in comparison to the average taxpayer who has only one income, particularly in the lower brackets. Unbellevable but true . Thirty-three States and the District of Columbia have adopted a sales tax and found it workable without any levies on earned incomes or excessive has Massachusetts fumbled the ball? I predict that in a few years, our present and past dis-senters against a workable sales tax will be labeled — Rip Van Winkles . . .

Now is the time for our elected and appointed public servants to put on their vizors for

VANDALISM in our city is on the increase. It is costing the taxpayers more every year. make the responsible parties pay the cost, or throw into oblivion the old adage, "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

I have talked with many aver-

Problems of Housing

Newton Graphic

Many individual citizens of my acquaintances have approached me with their problem of housing that has caused me to think seriously concern ing their tragic situation. There are comparatively in fair health whose children are not always in a position to provide them with a comfortable home. In many cases the mother or father does not wish to live with children fearing their interfer ence may make for unhappiness besides their own feeling of in dependence and prestige may suffer. The only alternative left, considering the financial status, is to rent one room. You don't know what easy money is, until you have received, or have been credited with, Watertown Federal dividends.

You just lie back in your hammock or easy chair and let your savings simmer at Watertown Federal. In a few years you can take out $100 for about every $65 you have put in. The speed depends on how fast you save how soon. $65 put in today will be worth approximately $100 in about 10 years at Watertown Federal's present dividend rate. You see, even the dividends earn dividends (compound dividends.)

Cash for Police Officer Training

Despite an urgent plea by State Representative George E. Rawson of Newton, the House rejected a bill which would N.H. Chiefs have the Commonwealth underwrite the money needed for the training of local department v.F. Hawks police officers in State police schools. He told his colleagues that the State police academy, with a capacity for 100 officers w. Arrows with a capacity for 100 officers w. Arrows had attained excellent results. The Newton representative said that many small towns can-not afford the $100 charge for not afford the $100 charge for each police officer sent to the State police for training. He said the State should pick up the check for all officers sent to the academy. He declared that the bill had the support of the Massachusetts Police Chiefs As-ment of Public Safety.

The House in arising vote rejected the measure 28 to 27 and when Representative Rawson sought a roll call he was unable to muster sufficient sup-port. The House Ways and means committee had advised rejection of the bill.

Three-Way Democratic Fight For Right To Oppose Curtis

An unusual three-way battle has developed for the right to run as the Democratic candidate against Republican Congressman Laurence Curtis in the November elec-

The eagerness to carry the Democratic banner against Curtis, who has won three consecutive congressional elections, undoubtedly stems from the fact that a strong Democratic tide appears to be running.

The three contenders for the Democratic nomination in the 10th congressional district are Boston City Councillor Edward F. McLaughlin, Jr., of Jamaica Plain, Attorney Joseph J. Mulhern, Jr., of Jamaica Plain and Attorney John L. Saltonstall, Jr., of Brookline.

So far their race has been a very polite affair, with each of the three proceeding in gingerly fashion and abstaining carefully from doing anything which might create bitterness and impair his election-day chances next November in the event that he wins the nomina-

Mayor Whitmore Received Tardy Invitation to Rites

Newton officials were conspicuously absent as the first spike was driven for the $10.6 million MTA rapid transit line which is to be established on the abandoned Highland branch of the Boston & Albany railroad.

But there appeared to be some uncertainty as to exactly who snubbed whom. An invitation was extended to Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., to attend the ceremonies surrounding the driving of the first spike into the MTA tracks over which rapid transit cars will be running to and from Newton

How long it will be from spike-driving to the opening of service no one seems to know exactly. Originally, the promise was 18 months or upwards. They've been revising that estimate downward until now you can get "experts" who are forecasting 12 months of waiting until the first sardine-packed MTA vehicle carries its load of bright-eyed, grateful Newton passengers from Riverside to Park street in the promised time of 32 minutes flat.

Meanwhile, Newton commuters are learning other modes of transport to get themselves to transport to get themselves to work or shopping in Boston; eyeing warily the threat of the B & A to junk its suburban mainline operations; studying the threats of MTA employees, who say they'll go on strike unless they get some rice fat increases to make them the highest paid rapid transit workers in the world.

Actually, a resident of Newton, albeit a temporary one, drove the first spike at the ceremony near the opening of Boston's Kenmore square. He was Governor Furcolo.
In all, about 75 persons attended. Among them was another Newton resident — Chairman William F. Callahan of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, who lives in Waban. He wasn't representing New-

He wasn't representing New-ton, just his own Authority. Currently, the Turnplike Au-thority is completing work on plans which Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., and others in Newton do not believe include any large share of benefits for the Garden City. Indeed, they think the plans calling for the extension of the Turnpike to Boston will cause more than a few headaches for Newton's well-being.

All-in-all Newton betrayed no crass desire to throw its collective hats in the air at the spike-driving. Through no fault of its own it's suffering a mass transportation migraine at the moment. It's taking a wait-and-see attitude at the nos-trums being prescribed by non-Newtonites.

The 6000-plus figure is no arbitrary guess. It's a pattern so well established that even the National Safety Council finds it almost necessary to accept it as an unchangeable norm.

Neither Mulhern nor Saltonstall has ever run for public office before, and each must be rated as politically untested

Mulhern has the handicap of being the last one to enter the contest. While his announcement followed fairly closely on that of McLaughlin, the Councillor actually had travelled across the district, lining up support and getting pledges of backing before he officially tossed his hat into the ring.

That placed Mulhern at some disadvantage because politicians, having made their commitments and given their word, are reluctant to switch lest they lose face in their own profession.

Close interest will be centered on the progress of the battle between McLaughlin, Mulhern and Saltonstall, although when it is concluded the winner must then understand a fight with Congress of Chapter and Saltonstall, although with Congress of the William B. Strenuous Fight is Forecast For Control of State Senate

From the statements and the campaign planning of Massachusetts Republican leaders it is apparent that for all practical purposes they are conceding that the GOP has no real chance of regaining control of the House of Representatives.

They don't say so in as many words, and they probably would deny emphatically that they are writing off the House. The facts, however, speak for themselves.

When top-level Republican politicos sit down to discuss the coming campaign, they invariably talk about the all-out fight that will be waged to recapture the Governorahip and to maintain the thin margin their party holds in the State Senate.

No plans have been voiced for a tremendous drive to win back the House, and when questioned about it, some very sound and astute GOP leaders privately concede that the House probably is a lost cause as far as this year is

One significant aspect to that altuation is that only in modern history has Massachusetts elected a Republican Governor and a Democratic House. That was in 1954, when Christian A. Herter won reelection to a second term in the Governorship while the Democrats were recapturing the House.

Prior to that 1954 election, in fact, it was regarded as virtually a political impossibility for a State election in Massachusetts to produce a Republican Governor and a

That undoubtedly would be the cause for great concern on the part of Attorney General Fingold and his advisers if it were not for the fact that Massachusetts now is considered a ballot-splitting State in which just about anything can happen.

The fact that the GOP is facing a back-to-the-wall struggle to hold the State Senate, last Republican bastion on Beacon Hill, is unquestionably one of the reasons why the House has assumed the role of political step-child in the GOP scheme of affairs.

In the entire history of Massachusetts the Demo-crats never have been able to win a majority of the seats in the Senate. The closest they ever came was in the 1948 election when 20 Democrats and 20 Republicans gained places in the upper legislative chamber to give each party the same voting strength.

It probably is no worse than an even-money bet that the Democrats for the first time may obtain control of the Senate in next November's voting.

The Republicans realize that and, next to the Governorship and the Attorney Generalship, they have centered their attention on the Senate and have made it one of their major lines of political attack.

If the GOP strategists were to divert any substantial amount of money and energy into an effort to regain the House, they might well wind up by losing both the House and the Senate. Certainly, they would have less chance of holding the Senate.

Aside from the fact that a Democratic tide appears to be running, the decisions of five Republican Solons either to retire from public life or to seek higher offices have complicated the problem confronting the GOP high command as far as the Senate is concerned.

All five are from fairly close districts, with three of them from sectors which have elected Democratic Senators in the past. One of the five. Senator Edward J. De-Saulnier, Jr., of Chelmsford, unseated a Democrat in 1956. A second, Senator Silvio O. Conte of Pittsfield, ousted a summer. Democrat when he originally won election to the upper legislative branch.

Democratic State Senate Leader John E. Powers maintains that the Democrats are certain of retaining all 9 seats they now hold in the Senate and that all they have to do to capture the body is to wrest two posts away from the Republicans.

Powers is not exactly an unbiased or disinterested onlooker. It is fair, however, to say that 15 of the 19 Democratic Solons either will gain reelection without

Of the 21 Republicans who now comprise the majority in the Senate, only 16 will be running for reelection, and not more than 12 or 13 of them are from districts which can be counted as securely in the GOP column.

fice, but former Speaker Charles Gibbons is moving in Children Raise to run in his place

The districts of three or four of the Republican Senators who are seeking reelection also will be hectic battlegrounds next autumn. In one of them Senator Otto F. Burkhardt of Westfield won by a scant three votes in 1956.

Back through the sweep of the years the Republican party in Massachusetts almost always could count on holding the Senate, regardless of what other offices in the State government it lost.

That is no longer the case. The character and political temper of some of the senatorial districts have changed. This year the battle for the control of the Senate looms as a tossup which could go either way. There is no cer-and presented 12 acts which tainty whatever that what has long been known as the were well received by the audilast line of Republican defense on Beacon Hill will not ence. be wiped out next November.

Should the Democrats succeed in gaining control of the Senate for the first time in the history of the Com-monwealth, Senator John E. Powers would become the hody's president. If Powers were to leave the Senate to become Mayor of Boston, a fight for the Presidency would develop between Senators Maurice A. Donahue of Holyoke and William D. Fleming of Worcester.

Even now, however, in the heat of the summer the Republican high command is mapping its plans for the Battle of the Senate and plotting its strategy to prevent the upper legislative chamber from shifting over into Democratic hands.

On Benefits of Primary Race

Governor Furcolo's political advisers and lieutenants are divided in their opinions as to whether they would like to see him opposed in the September primary.

Both groups are convinced that the Governor would win decisively against any of the candidates who have submitted gubernatorial nomination papers.

But they disagree on whether Furcolo would benefit from a warm-up contest within his own party in the late

One faction points out that there is little doubt but that Furcolo was aided by the fact that he had opposition in the 1956 Democratic primary and that the victory he gained then gave momentum to his drive against Sumner G. Whittier in the subsequent election.

They also assert that a primary fight, even of a token nature, would sharpen up Furcolo's organization for the all-important battle with Attorney General Fingold next fall.

The group which takes the opposite view, however, cites that there is an element of danger whenever a sita contest or will have only token opposition.

While the Republicans undoubtedly will make forceful fights in the other four districts, they're not likely at the can suffer a psycholgical setback even while winning

Any Governor, they point out, displeases certain members of his own party in the course of 20 months in office. Some Democrats, who are dissatisfied with one or more things Furcolo has done, might well vote against him in the primary to express that displeasure even though they intended to vote for him in the subsequent election.

A substantial vote against Furcolo in the primary, no the five districts where the present Republican Senators are stepping out. The one seat which the GOP seems reas as a defection within his own party. In that sense a prisonably sure of holding is in the 7th Middlesex district mary fight for him would represent an everything-to-lose-where Senator Charles E. Ferguson is retiring from of- and-nothing-to-gain proposition.

While Massachusetts recorded eight (8) fatalities during the holiday period, it is conceivable that without the out-standing assistance of the press in keeping the public in-formed of the need for extreme caution, the number of persons killed might have far exceeded this figure.

Believe me to be most grateful for this co-operation.

Local Baseball Stars Invited to Cards' Try-Outs

Latest of the major league baseball clubs to do some digging for precious diamond talent in southeastern New England are the St. Louis Cardinals.

They are setting up a tryout camp at Barry Field, Woonsocket, R.I., July 21 and 22. Farm Director Walter Shannon will be in charge and he'll be assisted by a staff of eagleeyed baseball scouts.

All aspiring young ball players between the ages of 17 and 23 hereabouts are invited by the Cardinals to show their wares. The sessions each day will begin at 10 a.m.

Shannon is an avowed devo-tee of the Cardinals' system of finding replacement parts of the Red Birds. "Major league talent must be developed in the minors," says Walter, "and we believe that the Cardinals have the know-how and best system for the patient development and advancement of young players.

'We regard this area as fertile baseball territory. We're hopeful of coming up with some bright major stars of the ture. It is a real opportunity for an ambitious young fellow with a desire to get into professional baseball. If he has the talent we're looking for, the Cardinal organization is one to develop it and get

The gift of the Newton firm, which is handling the distribu-tion of the Mark VII in Newton, was accepted as grant-in-aid to Segal's department to facilitate the diagnosis and treatment of patients at Boston City Hospital by Dr. John F. The unit has many features to recommend it. It has the capacity for doing the breath-ing for the patient, overcoming, for instance, such bronchial spasms as may be present in cases of asthma or emphysema. The unit can also be used to ventilate the lungs of patients who have such an artificial opening as trachea. Due to its versatility it can be used simul-taneously with the employment of drugs aimed at loosening the patient's secretions and/or to destroy harmful organisms.

Its sensitive nature permits adjustment to match the patient's air-volume demands for the intake of oxygen and the discharge of carbon dioxide from the lungs.

Fingold's Prospects Injured By His Inability to Campaign

Attorney General Fingold's absence from the political firing line for the next month is virtually certain to lessen his chances of defeating Governor Furcolo in next Novem-

Apparently there is nothing wrong with Fingold that a month's rest will not cure. But his collapse from ex-haustion came at a time when his political timetable called for him to gradually begin stepping up his campaign.

His aides and lieutenants presumably will continue with the groundwork for his campaign, although there are some things which only the candidates can do in a gubernatorial contest.

The important thing, however, is that Fingold for the next month will not be in a position to start build-ing up his bid for the Governorship or to begin making an impression upon the voters.

A lull in activity along the Republican front followed the GOP convention in Worcester as Fingold and most of the other contenders there took time out to rest up and catch their breath after their pre-convention campaign-

Fingold's collapse came just at the time that lull was due to be ended and the Republican campaign was about to be launched.

In retrospect, the fact that GOP chieftains were able to persuade former Speaker Charles Gibbons to withdraw from the gubernatorial primary and run in-stead for the State Senate looms more important today than it did a fortnight ago.

Varton Mavisakalian has never seen Jimmy Piersall flip the sun glasses; go back to the bull pen wall, clamp one paw on its top, catapult himself into the air and then take a "sure" home run away from some American League journeyman slugger.

They don't use Red Sox box scores in Beirut papers And, if they did, Vartan wouldn't be interested in the '58-'59 Concert sport pages. After snatching the morning gazette off the front porch in Beirut the only score Vartan was interested in recently was how close the Lebanese Rebels had come the night before.

And "snatch" is the word. Until the U. S. Marines dropped in, you didn't linger long on the front porch of your home in Beirut. It wasn't healthy. You see Vartan's old home in Beirut was right next door to that of President Camille Chamoun.

State Public Works Head Says Money Will Be Paid

State Senator Donald L. Gibbs of Newton apparently is on the verge of winning his long and determined battle to compel the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority to pay $4,329,000 it owes to the State public works department.

While Gibbs has protested that he got the "runaround" at almost every turn in his efforts to force the payment of the debt, State Public Works Commissioner Anthony DiNatale has announced that the money is about to be paid.

Senator Gibbs last night indicated his satisfaction at DiNatale's statement but asserted that he will wait until the $4,392,000 is actually in the State treasury before assuming that his fight finally has been won.

Payment of the debt would enable the State public works department to go ahead with highway projects of its own which have been sidetracked because of the lack

Gibbs declares that while the State's own highway fund has shrunk to almost microscopic proportions, he hasn't been able to find anyone in the present State administration who lecting the money.

Furthermore, the Newton Senator alleges that the $4 million-plus is part of $17 million which the Turnpike Authority has been investing in federal government bonds which, he declares, pay three percent interest.

The Garden City Solon, an authority on the matter, has been attempting to get a "shot-in-the-arm" for the State's lag-ging finances through the col-greater disadvantage if he were forced out of political action for a month when he had primary opposition.

Events may prove, of course, that Attorney General Fingold will be able to overcome the handicap of losing a month from his campaign in mid-summer and go on to win election as the next Governor. Right now, however, his enforced idleness, which probably will extend almost to Labor Day, must be viewed as a blow to his prospects.

That is especially true since Governor Furcolo, by virtue of his office, will be constantly in the public eye, while Attorney General Fingold is getting the rest ordered by his physician.

Furcolo, it should be remembered, actually benefited two years ago from the fact that he had a primary contest. It served to center public attention on him and to give him publicity he otherwise would not have received.

This time, of course, Furcolo is the Governor, and he automatically has the public spotlight upon him. Fingold as the challenger is the one who most needs to command the attention of the voters. He can ill afford to lose the month which is being taken from his campaign.

State Tax on Cities and Towns Alternative to Withholding Law

One of the reasons Governor Furcolo is likely to win on his second try for the enactment of a State withholding tax is that the members of the Legislature will find themselves in quite a dilemma if he loses.

Should the withholding measure be defeated, the probability is that a deficit State tax would be levied upon the cities and towns of the Commonwealth next year for the first time since the early 1940's.

The cries of anguish over such a turn of events from local officials, already deep in tax rate troubles of their own, undoubtedly would be heard from Boston to the furthermost hills of the Berkshires.

Yet, right now a State tax upon the cities and towns appears to be the alternative to a withholding tax, and there are mayors, selectmen and city managers who turn pale and reach for the smelling salts at the mere thought of such a thing.

Before the late Maurice J. Tobin was elected Governor back in 1944 the Commonwealth used to have a very convenient way of balancing its budget.

The State would raise whatever it comfortably could toward meeting its operating costs, and if the income fell short of matching the outgo, which it almost always did up to 1945, the cities and towns would simply be called upon to make up the difference out of their own tax re-

When Maurice Tobin was Mayor of Boston, he protested vigorously against having to pay any part of the State's bills, and when he became Governor at the start of 1945 he halted the practice of imposing a state tax upon the cities and towns. That practice could be dusted off and revived next year. Exactly how the State would make both financial ends meet if it doesn't get the $17 million windfall it is estimated the withholding tax would produce next year apparently is not considered a polite topic of conversation by most legislators on Beacon Hill.

However, there would be only three courses open to the Legislature if the withholding tax measure is rejected a second time.

It could reduce the State budget by $17 million.

It could enact new taxes which would yield the

3. It could levy a State deficit tax back upon the cities and towns. It is highly unlikely that the Legislature would undertake to trim $17 million from the State budget. It is even less likely that it would enact any new taxes with the November election looming prominently upon the

The only other alternative is to have the already hard-pressed cities and towns pick up the check for the

Before any municipal officials start swooning in large numbers, however, it should be reported that there appears to be a good chance that the withholding bill may squeak through the State Senate on its second trip through the legislative chambers..

Furcolo Expected to Back McCormack for Atty. Gen.

Governor Furcolo will support Boston City Councillor campaign for reelection. He doesn't seek campaign for reelection. test for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General. At least that is the interpretation State House observers are placing on statements made by Furcolo at a recent press conference.

In response to questions put by reporters, the Governor said that the candidates endorsed at the Democratic convention would campaign together as a team for the September primary.

Since there are fights for only two places on the Democratic State ticket—Attorney General and Treasurer—that was construed to mean that Furcolo intended to give that was construed to mean that Furcolo intended to give his backing to McCormack for Attorney General and Mayor William G. Shaughnessy of Woburn for State Treasurer. Shaughnessy, of course, is opposing Treasurer John F. Kennedy who boycotted the convention.

However, Treasurer Kennedy says that Governor Street, and John F. Maloney, Easthampton.

Four-Cent Stamps

In the "good old days" life was less exacting.
For instance, one didn't have to worry about—"Where'll we go" when a three-day holiday popped up on the calendar. There were no three-day holidays. Those who had Saturday afternoons off were in the capitalistic class. Most people were peasants. For them, Saturday was distinguished from the rest of the week by baked beans and brown bread and the weekly bath.

Some parents had a rule. "Don't give the children money, please," they told visitors. Uncles had a habit of breaking rules. They were known frequently to slip cute nieces and nephews pennies and sometimes even nickels. The gift was usually accompanied with a secret-sharing

The child recipients of the largesse immediately repaired to the corner store. The pennies and the nickels eventually found their way into the worn till of the store's owner-but not until after considerable thought and study had been put into the selection of the purchase.

Every kid had a favorite in the glass candy case of the store owner. That didn't mean that the youngster who had suddenly come into wealth represented by two or three pennies or even a nickel, dashed right into the store and said "Three cents worth of jellybeans," even if, jellybeans were his favorite.

He studied the display as the store owner patiently or impatiently awaited his choice. His eyes danced from jelly beans to "choklitty" stuff to pink creams in midget pie plates to more permanent investments like long-chew-

Point is that the youngster was very careful about spending his new-found cash. Whatever a dour parent might think, he wasn't flinging his money away without deep and soul-searching consideration.

Offer a youngster three pennies or a nickel today and consider the reaction. If he's really naive, he'll ask you what they're for. If he's blessed or handicapped with one of these high IQs he'd be apt to throw the little brown things at you. And the doting parents would automatically tab you as some sort of a meak.

For pennies today have no vine except for changemaking. And nickels and dime > pretty much in the

Yet, along toward Christmas time, when you want to seal those greeting cards in order to give them the prestige of first class mail, you'll be a bit appalled by the cost of the sheet of stamps the man hands you at the postoffice. It was only a question of time before Congres got around to hiking the postal rates. Actually, the cost of postal service remains far out of keeping with the revenue t commands. It will probably remain so forever-at least as long as Americans are Americans.

They are pretty proud of their mails. They've never been too upset by the annual deficit the postal service runs up. They sort of accepted it all as a necessary subsidy. Costly but worth it.

Now, after August 1, you'll be paying four cents for that old three-cent stamp and other rates will be going up accordingly. A dozen years from now we may be paying a dime for the old two-cent George Washington stamp of another era. We'll pay it and the deficit will still be climbing but that's part of a new-day; a day when three-day holiday weekends threaten to become four-day weekends and even longer, a day when high school yards are filled with automobiles of pupils who wouldn't think of walking to school.

You can write your own ticket on what it all adds up to, if anything.

One thing's certain. The old days are gone forever. The little corner store has been replaced by the supermart. There's no old gray-hair presiding over candy case sales with patience and maybe a suggestion to help the three-cent transaction along. Millions of dollars are invested in advertising the jellybean substitutes. The kid with the high IQ can give you a breakdown on the ingredients of his long-lasting lollypop.

The pennies are only for change these days.

Unless you have four of them.

Then you can buy a stamp-starting Aug. 1.

Furcolo telephoned him after the news conference and told him that what he said didn't apply to him (Kennedy) since he was a Democratic office-holder.

Kennedy asserts that he understood from what Furcolo said to him that the Governor will remain neutral in the battle for the endorsement for Treasurer.

If Kennedy is correct in his understanding, it would mean that the only candidate involved in a primary fight whom Furcolo apparently does intend to support is Mc-Cormack who was on the Democratic ticket with him two years ago.

Treasurer Kennedy, incidentally, is probably the only candidate for State-wide office in Massachusetts who trudged from door to door to obtain signatures on his own nomination papers.

the Treasurer filed with the Secretary of State Edward J. ing a high school mathematics Cronin, Kennedy himself personally secured slightly more 1000.
The State Treasurer made house-to-house canvasses sity's College of Education and in his own behalf in Lynn, Cambridge, Canton, Abington WGBH-TV. Brockton, Worcester, Springfield and Fall River.

He did most of his signature-soliciting on weekends and at night after he had completed his day's duties in the Treasurer's office at the State House.

More than one person answering the doorbell in the communities listed above stared in disbelief when the caller identified himself as Treasurer John F. Kennedy and asked if they would be kind enough to sign his nomination papers.

Treasurer Kennedy, who is a very careful man with dollar, doesn't exactly throw money around in the course of his runs for elective office. He estimates that his Serving as Aide primary campaign will cost him about $100 and that his final election campaign, if he wins renomination in the September primary, will stand him another $100.

He already has used up a portion of his $100 budget for the primary by purchasing an occasional sandwich and glass of beer late at night for the volunteers who helped him get his nomination signatures. Part of the balance will be spent for a celebration or consolation supper for his supporters on primary night. Kennedy intends to do most of his campaigning between now and the primary by getting out and talking Tex. to the voters in their homes, at bus stops or wherever else he meets them. The State Treasurer, who handles millions upon millions of dollars in public funds in the course of a year, explains that $200 is about all he can afford to spend on his campaign for reelection. He doesn't seek campaign con-

Where You Borrow DOES Make a Difference May I pay off a little extra on my loan?

by don herold

You can pay any additional sum any time on your Watertown Federal home loan

That's another advantage of getting your home loan from a strictly home-town "home-folks" institution. The rules are more elastic. You can sit and talk things over.

If you get a little money ahead, you can make an extra payment on your loan, and thus save on total interest costs. You can also pay off your loan in full any time without penalty.

Watertown Federal gives you 15, 20, even 25 years to pay on a guaranteed contract.

Alderman Carleton P. Merrill, who is supporting Attorney Harris A. Reynolds of Wellesley for the Republican nomina-tion for Governor's Council and is serving as Reynolds' campaign manager, explained this week that he is doing so as an individual and not in his capa-city as head of the Newton GOP City Committee.

Reynolds and former Regis-trar of Motor Vehicles Rudolph F. King, are battling it out for the right to run as the Republican candidate for the seat in the Executive Council to be va-cated at the end of the year by Christian A. Herter. Alderman Merrill, in his capacity as chairman of the com mittee supporting Reynolds, sent out a letter endorsing Reynolds and describing him as "our candidate for that office."

Referring to former Registrar King, Merrill said that King had made "a fine record" as Registrar but is now retired on pension from the State service "because of age."

He went on to say that President Eisenhower and Republi-can leaders throughout the country "have urged that young and capable Republicans seek public office." Merrill declared Reynolds's such a candidate.

While Merrill's letter was gressional district. sent out on Reynolds' campaign stationery, it was signed "for the committee," and some read-ers assumed that he was speak-ing for the Republican City Committee.

Alderman Merrill consequentissued a statement asserting that neither the Republican Committee nor any Ward Committee in Newton will en-dorse any candidate in the September primary.

He declared that any indithat such an action should not the interpreted as either an of-ficial or unofficial stand by the McLauhglin stated. Previously,

The furore over Merrill's letter reflects the feeling being demonstrated both my ability aroused by the hard fight being and my desire to provide a high waged by King and Reynolds for the Republican nomination for the Governor's Council.

Newton All Stars Defeat Wellesley

Behind the one hit pitching of Richie Pollack, who also found time to belt out a long home run, the Newton South Little League All Stars won a 4-1 decision over the Wellesley East Stars at Hunnewell Field in Wellesley Monday night. It was the first game in the Little League District Playoffs.

Pollack, besides his homer, had a triple, drove home two runs, and scored twice to shelve the popular notion that "pitchers can't hit."

The only run that the Wellesley Club managed to score came in the final frame, and was unearned.

McLaughlin's supporters pointed out that he is the only Democratic candidate in 10th congressional district who has held elective public office.

Cowboy Town to Aid 'Jimmy Fund'

Cowboy Town on Route 1, Plainville, a popular spot for youngsters, will feature "Jim-my Fund" day next Wednesday, July 30. Plans are being completed to make it a gala day which will result in a sizable contribution to the cancer research program.

The action-packed wild west shows which depict life in the cactus country of a century ago are attracting hundreds of youngsters each day. Last week "Big Brother" Bob Emery, a big favorite of the small fry on TV, made a visit to the popular entertainment center and was greeted by hundreds of youngsters as he drove up the main street on one of the old western stage coaches. Later in the day he took the role of General Custer as the Cowboy Town perforners recreated Custor's last tand. Youngsters attending stand. the performance were cast as cavalry soldiers or Indians of the tribe of Chief Crazy Horse and Chief Sitting Bull. While the Indians annihilated the cavalry regiment "Big Brother"

Married and the father of four children, he makes his home at 9 Church road, Newton. In private life he is the eastern Massachusetts representative for a Cambridge candy company.

Bradley is affiliated with the Elks, Knights of Columbus and the American Legion and also is a member of the Newton Democratic ward and city committees, the Newton Democratic Club and the Young Democrats of Greater Boston.

As a member of the Board of Aldermen, he is presently serving on the public buildings, licenses and franchises, and municipal parking committees.
His efforts earlier this year to obtain a wage increase for the city employees won him the acclaim of the Massachusetts State Council of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO. In announcing his candidacy, Alderman Bradley said:

"After careful consideration on my part and the constant en couragement of my many followers, I offer myself a a Demo-cratic candidate for the office of Executive Councillor from the third councillor district.

"I am fully cognizant of the profound duties and responsi-bilities of public office. I believe that this district needs a young and vigorous Democrat to gain effective representation on the Executive Council.

"I have received pledges of support throughout the district and intend to campaign in the best traditions of the Democratic party by meeting as many people as possible and learning

New Minister At 1st Congregational Served in Navy

Thurs., July 24, 1958 THE NEWTON GRAPHIC Page 7

Rev. Frank Milton Weiskel of Amherst, N. H., has been elected minister of the First Church in Newton, Congregational, in Newton Centre. He will succeed the Rev. Nathanael M. Guptill.

Married and the father of three sons, the new minister will take up residency at the church parsonage and inaugurate his new duties Sept. 1.

Although it was organized on July 20, 1664, the church has had only 14 ministers in the 294 years of its existence. The Rev. Mr. Weiskel is a graduate of the Union Theological Seminary in the class of He was ordained the same year in the New Jersey Association of Congregational Christian Churches. He served Congregationa' Churches in New Jersey and New York as well as doing duty for four years in the U. S. Navy as a chaplain. Two years of his naval service were during World War II and two during the Korean conflict.

He was called to the Congregational Church at Amherst, N. H., in 1954.

Governor Furcolo, for example, would risk opening old wounds in his own party if he were to recall to the public that he brushed aside political expediency and made a bold and courageous fight for a sales tax last year.

School Superintendent Will Get $3000 More Than Mayor

Surprise and disappointment were expressed by many Newton teachers this week that the School Committee went outside its own school system and picked an educator from Texas to succeed Dr. Harold B. Gores as superintendent of Newton's public schools.

The attitude of the teachers generally was reflected in the swift resignation of Dr. Charles O. Richter from his post as assistant superintendent of schools when he learned that he was being passed over in favor of Eric N. Dennard who has been serving as superintendent of schools in Waco, Texas.

Dr. Richter left the Newton school department to become superintendent of public schools in Niskayuna, N. Y., a suburb of Schenectady.

Richter and Harold Howe II, headmaster of Newton High School, were the two local educators who had been under consideration by the School Board for possible promotion to the position of superintendent.

The public reaction to the fact that the School Committee reached down into Texas to find its new superintendent, was also for the most part one of bewilderment.

"We are supposed to have the best school system in the United States, and yet we go to Texas to get a sucrintend-ent," one civic leader told The Graphic. "I don't understand it." His puzzlement was shared by others.

While the teachers who were interviewed on the matter requested that they not be quot-ed by name, they made it clear that they, too, were shocked and baffled by the School Com-mittee action

One explanation offered in some quarters was that the School Committee members were unable to agree on a choice between Richter and Howe and finally passed them both over. tration of voters in this city.

of the Texas educator who on Sept. 1 will assume the from Belmont. direction of Newton's school department, it does seem strange that the School Committee did not select its new superintendent from its own system.

Newton has an excellent school system. It is rated as one of the best in the United States. It is also a fairly large school system, about the same size as that in Waco, Texas, whence the new superintendent is to come.

It is difficult to believe that there is no one in the Newton school department who was eminently fitted for the position of superintendent and who would have done an outstanding job as the successor to Dr. Harold B.

If that were the case, it would reflect unfavorably upon the School Committee itself and would indicate that under Dr. Gores we had a one-man organization.

It is very understandable that Newton's school teachers, who have been repeatedly commended for the excellence of the job they do, would be both surprised and shocked that the School Committee did not choose someone from their ranks as the city's school head.

This seems to be another case of distance lending

Conversations with many of the delegates at the Dem-

Attorney General Fingold can scarcely criticize Furcolo for advocating a sales tax because many Republicans feel strongly that a sales tax is the only per-manent solution to the State's financial problems and are bitterly disappointed one was not adopted last year.

If Fingold were to blast Furcolo for championing a sales tax, he almost certainly would lose support in his own party.

The cold fact of the matter is that the next Governor of Massachusetts, whether he be Foster Furcolo or George Fingold, is very likely to find himself in a position in 1959 where he will have no choice but to go to the Legislature and open a new drive for a sales tax.

Neither Furcolo nor Fingold would be apt to admit it publicly, but the State will be obliged to find some new source of revenue next year, and a sales tax comes pretty close to being the only real possibility.

because it appeared to offer the only solution to the financial problem confronting the Commonwealth. There was the statement at the top that it came "From the is little question but that the need for a sales tax will be Offices of Senators Kennedy and Saltonstall."

The amended measure went back to the Senate when the en more pressing in 1959 than it was in 1957, regardless of who is elected Governor.

During the upcoming gubernatorial campaign, however, sales tax evidently will be regarded only as two naughty words and a forbidden expression.

Furcolo Publicly Backing McCormack for Atty. Gen.

Governor Furcolo, who is not one to worry much Richter's Post about political tradition, is involving himself to a greater degree in primary battles within his own party than any Governor in a long time.

Governors in the past upon occasions have extended a helping hand to favored candidates battling for party nominations, but they usually did it privately and under cover while publicly maintaining a show of neu-

That consideration apparently does not trouble veys of public school buildings. Newton public schools, effective Furcolo.

Governor Furcolo has publicly endorsed Middlesex County District Attorney James L. O'Dea for renomination and election.

The Governor also has made no secret of the fact that Boston City Councillor Edward J. McCormack, Jr., is his choice for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General.

Furcolo has invited McCormack to use his (Furcolo's) has accepted. While that technically does not constitute an endorsement of McCormack, it comes pretty close to being tantamount to one.

As a matter of fact, it is pretty generally understood at the State House that Furcolo will publicly designed and the state House that Furcolo will publicly designed and the state House that Furcolo will publicly designed and respectively.

Furcolo's support of McCormack stems from the cil of the Boy Scouts.

Governor's desire to have the Boston City Councillor and nephew of Congressional Majority Leader John W. McCormack on the ticket with him for the showdown battle next autumn.

McCormack has a large and energetic organization, especially in Democratic Boston, and Furcolo understandably desires to have it out working for the Democratic slate.

One thing which certainly can be said for Furcolo is that he is making no attempt to conceal what he is doing and is putting on no pretense of neutrality where McCormack is concerned.

An interesting aspect to the situation is that Furcolo is doing so on the ground that McCormack was endorsed by the Democratic pre-primary convention which gives increased importance to the fourth-ballot victory Mc-Cormack won at the Democratic conclave.

Lively Races Being Waged Across Middlesex County

Aside from the clash between O'Dea and Trodden for Diplomatic Talk the Democratic endorsement for District Attorney, several interesting primary fights are being waged across Middlesex County for nominations for county offices.

Two county commissioners—James F. Mahan and William G. Andrew—are battling for the Republican nomination for District Attorney and the right to run in November against the winner of the O'Dea-Trodden encounter.

No less than 13 candidates are seeking the Democratic Without reflecting in any way upon the qualifications ville, five from Cambridge, two from Medford and one

Listed in that free-for-all race are John B. Carr. John L. Sullivan, C. Michael Bradley, Francis J. O'Dea and Lawrence H. Avery, all of Somerville; Timothy F. O'Connor, Patrick J. Brennan, Timothy J. Cosgrove, George H. Bailey and Edward J. Crane, all of Cambridge; John Fred Buckley and Vincent J. Bowen, both of Medford, and John V. Harvey of Belmont.

Two candidates bidding for the Republican endorsement for Register of Probate are Warren J. Fitzgerald of Belmont and Winston W. Bell of Cambridge.

Saltonstall in Unusual Role In Sen. Kennedy's Campaign

Except possibly for the members of the immediate family of Vincent J. Celeste of East Boston, it is doubtful that anyone in either political party in Massachusetts seriously believes that Celeste has any real chance of defeating U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy.

When former Speaker Charles Gibbons loomed as the contender against Kennedy, a thin possibility existed that a stunning upset of the kind that have startled the political world back over the years might occur.

Even Gibbons, however, concluded that possibility was so remote as to be almost non-existent, and when the support and backing he expected failed to materialize Gibbons declared in a public address that he considered himself ill-fitted for the role of "sacrificial lamb."

Political experts wondered then and are still wondertion might well have upheld Furcolo's action in proposing ing if the Republican high command wouldn't have been Self to Properity shrewder to concede Kennedy reelection by default rather than to make what amounts to a token fight against him.

Senator Kennedy, who desires to make as good an election-day showing as possible in order to enhance his prestige for the 1960 Presidential battle, is starting his drive for reelection as if Christian A. Herter were his adversary and President Eisenhower were coming on from Washington personally to direct Herter's campaign.

Kennedy isn't likely to be able to convince anyone that he has a real fight, but he obviously is going to try.

That's a bit extraordinary in politics where most candidates will solemnly assure the electorate that they're certain of winning when they know themselves that they're destined for defeat.

One top-level Republican who is aiming no political hatchets at Kennedy's head is the latter's colleague in the U. S. Senate—Leverett Saltonstall.

From Washington this week came a joint news release reporting that Senators Kennedy and Saltonstall itow themselves into prosper-ity," Rawson told his col-leagues. "With the huge burden Furcolo obviously didn't advocate a sales tax last year in order to demonstrate his political courage. He did it regular operations of the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries.

The final inning found South scoring its last run. Dan Coakley, in a scene which looked like a rehearsal for the old Keystone Kops, singled to right, put his head down, and never stopped running as he made it safely home on a series of errors.

The game was never on ice and a single at the right time could have tilted the score the other way with no trouble at all. Rooney showed good con-trol and picked up his second win in tournament play. He didn't walk a man and went the

McLaughlin Says Democrat Can Win In 10th District

City Councillor Edward F. McLaughlin, Jr., of Jamaica Plain declared today that a Democratic Congressman can be elected from the 10th con-gressional district in November if the Democratic voters of that district nominate in the September primary a candidate with a proven record of public service.

"We hear on all sides that a Democratic tide is running across the nation," McLaughlin asserted, "but we can take advantage of that tide in the 10th congressional district only by nominating a proven and tested candidate."

McLaughlin pointed to his own record of public service in Boston's municipal government, citing that the people of Bos-ton twice have re-elected him to office on the strength of that

"In this campaign for nomination for a seat in Congress and the right to run in November as the Democratic candidate in the 10th congressional district, I am standing on the record I have made as a mem ber of the Boston City Coun cil for the past five years," Mc-Laughlin stated.

"Wherever and whenever the opportunity offers itself, I am discussing my public record and the positions I have taken on the major problems which have confronted Boston's city government during the past five years," McLaughlin said.

'The best evidence I can give as to the calibre of that record,' he continued, "Is that after electing me in 1953 the people of Boston re-elected me in 1955 again in 1957.

McLaughlin pointed out that in addition to his five years as a Boston City Councillor, he also served as an Assistant U. S. Attorney and in that capacity participated in the prosecution of a number of major cases.

"All I as."," McLaughlin emphasized, "is that the Demo at the same time — one on the side of the earth towards the moon, the other on the consolidation in the consolidat themselves which of the three has demonstrated himself as best fitted to serve them in the Congress of the United States and most likely, therefore, to win election in November."

A navy veteran of World War II, who served with Senator John F. Kennedy in a P.T boat squadron in the South Pacific, McLaughlin is a graduate of Dartmouth College, the Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth and North eastern University Law School. In private life he is a practising attorney. He is married and the father of five children.

Colonel Thayer | Completes Duty | Places For Fall | Baseball Program | TO PLACE AN AD CALL DAVIS 6-4000 In Its 46th Year

Anyone worried about the de-cline of baseball as the "national game" could gain a lot of reassurance and forget the worry by taking a look around the diamonds of the Newtons.

REAL ESTATE

YOUR

This is the 46th year of operation of the recreation department's midget and junior base-ball leagues. The brand of ball they play is as good or even superior to that of grandpop's day. So is the enthusiasm and love of the game.

Says Recreation Commission-er C. Evan Johnson, "It is most significant that these ground leagues as conducted in Newton are the oldest in Muni-cipal Recreation history in the New England area.

The leagues are representative of every section of the city. The summer play leads to the crowning of a district championship club. The city-wide "world series" will eventually determine Newton's championship teams.

This year the Newtonville-Nonantum area's outstanding mid-get team is that which represents Carr Playground. The junior division has a real dog fight on its hands and the champ won't be determined until the results of that fight are in.

Here are the midget baseball squads:
